Congreso de Paraguayos Migrantes en los Estados Unidos, Inc. joins Chile organization and helps fund the development of a board game to help generate Dengue awareness

CPMUSA has partnered with Paraguayos Residents of Chile to distribute “Beat the Dengue” board games within Paraguay. This board game was strategically developed to engage children and help them understand how to combat Dengue.

According to Ana Di Sessa, President of CPMUSA, this is a great opportunity to help educate kids of Paraguay to the dangers of Dengue and more importantly, how to prevent. Marta Vera and her husband Salgado Eduardo Caballero, members of Paraguayos Residents en Chile, are the creators of the game. The concept is to have the kids play the game which will make them learn about Dengue. Dengue is a serious threat to Paraguay and every year more people acquire the illness and in some cases die.

This project will be an ongoing. If anyone is interested in helping, please contact info@conparmusa.com or visit our website at www.conparmusa.com. For more information about the game, please visit www.juegodengue.blogspot.com
